The Navajo wood sample is a structural beam and impregnated with bituminous pitch. It has mortise and tenon joints. It is definitely hand-hewn and squared. Test methods determined degree of lignin, or coal formation, gain in wood density, cell modification, and degree of fossilization. Conducted at National Museum of Natural History in Paris & in Madrid & in Bordeaux & @ Casis Museum.

Wood belongs to the QUERCUS Oak group Hard & compact wood - density 1.1 (normal density is 0.800 - 0.850). Sample is about 5000 yrs old. Taken from tree whose $\delta = \text{Sea}^+$ said aver. density was 0.925 when new. 5 ft deterioration by freezing.

Another lab said 4,500 yrs old.
Carbon 14 tests said 1,250 yrs old & 1,700 yrs old Doubts have been cast on this dating by the Carbon 14. The method may be faulty
